

INVITATION

Revitalized Multilateralism: Recommitting to Ending AIDS Together

High-Level Side Event with Global Leaders, 79th UN General Assembly,
Tuesday 24 September 2024, 13:00–14:30, Delegates Dining Room,
United Nations Headquarters, New York

Featuring Heads of State and Government, and high-level partners across all sectors, demonstrating the global HIV response as an exemplary model of global solidarity and multilateralism successfully at work. Convening to:

- Celebrate achievements towards ending AIDS as a public health threat by 2030
- Demonstrate that global solidarity works, and effective multilateral action is possible, as demonstrated by the success and promise of the HIV response
- Renew commitments both political and financial to ending AIDS together

UNAIDS, the U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) and the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria, together with leaders from countries and communities around the world, invite you to engage in an active dialogue and renewal of commitments to end AIDS as a public health by 2030 and sustain the progress beyond 2030.

The side event will feature representation from a range of sectors, including high-level speakers from the private sector and philanthropy, and importantly will include the participation of young people living with HIV, who will represent the voices of youth and all those with the greatest stake in the future and sustainability of the HIV response.
